Class Description

With recent major weather events and future events in mind – developing, updating, and maintaining emergency procedures and policies has never been more important; disaster recovery being no exception.

Join MWUA and MEMA as we dive into recovering from disasters. Topics from disaster declarations, to how to document disaster damages and recovery efforts, to useful resources and best practices will be discussed.

Alongside major weather events becoming more frequent and widespread, disasters are also happening more often. This class will help you and your utility learn how to recover from disasters – saving you time, money, and energy in the long run!
